One title, two ways to advertise it

The same Tor Books feed, before and after. On the left, a typical hand-built social ad. On the right, the set ARGUS drafts for a launch: search-tuned copy, several creative directions, every placement, ready for one person to approve.

Traditional process

TODAY

1. Pull-quote copy
   A review quote works for trade buyers but underperforms heavily with consumers.
2. One static image
   A product shot that doesn't stand out in the feed, with no variation in creative to test against.
3. Low engagement
   28 reactions, no comments, no shares.

PEOPLE
Several
Multiple personnel and creative discussions

EST. TIME
3.5 hrs

OUTPUT
1 ad

argus WITH ARGUS

1. Search-tuned ad copy
   Keyword-heavy lines written for SEO and GEO, so the ad matches how readers actually search.
2. Creative variations
   Several distinct concepts per title, from humor to mood shots, ready to test against each other.
3. High engagement
   Creative and copy optimized by AI. 942 reactions and 27 comments on the lead ad.
4. Multi-title ads
   Carousels pair the lead title with related backlist from the same imprint.

PEOPLE
One
A single stakeholder signs off

EST. TIME
2 min
plus approval

OUTPUT
10+ ads

Time to a finished ad set, drawn to scale

Estimated working time before the campaign can launch.

Times are estimates for a single title launch.